Human Development

DT Global's Human Development practice transforms outcomes for communities through advancements in education, health and nutrition services, and gender and social inclusion. We work with citizens, schools, health centers, and governments to increase access to quality education and health services. Throughout program life cycles, we consider complex gender relations and the roles that women and men play in households, communities, business, and government. Our team employs strategies that inclusively and meaningfully consider the individuals we work with – leading to effective, sustainable development outcomes.

We implement the building blocks of sustainable human development, providing access to equitable health, education, and social protection for all citizens.

We work in partnership with local stakeholders to foster inclusive prosperity, social equity, and environmental stewardship. Our global team of 2,500 staff and experts, with experience in over 100 countries, solve complex problems in the peacebuilding, governance, economic development, environment, and human development sectors. With a track record of technical excellence and more than 60 years of international development experience and relationships, we deliver innovative solutions that transform lives.

Education and Employment

DT Global supports educational systems at the national, regional, and local levels, enhancing institutional capacity to provide formal, informal, and vocational and technical learning in primary and early childhood through secondary school and adult education. We work at national levels with government ministries to formulate policy, develop curricula, and conduct teacher education, and at local levels local schools to apply national curricula, develop training, and support individual school management. We address effective gender, language, and ethnic diversity in educational materials and curriculum design, and our projects increase the employability of disadvantaged groups, reduce social and gender discrimination, and provide support to civil society organizations. We improve teacher training, recruitment, and deployment and support governments by enhancing institutional capacity and developing vocational training programs that prepare individuals to face the requirements of a changing market, ensuring future competitiveness and creating new employment opportunities. These efforts are complemented by capacity building projects aimed at designing labor market measures and defining employment strategies that ensure socio-economic development and poverty reduction.

Health and Nutrition

We support health and nutrition programs that increase positive outcomes for children and adults across the globe. Poor nutrition is a leading threat to world health, contributing to maternal and child mortality and cyclical poverty. Our programming strengthens health systems and private and non-profit health solutions and builds healthcare capacity through reform, training, and education. We build digital solutions to create access to health data and analytics. We work to reduce stunting and increases nutrition for children by strengthening governance, developing country nutrition programming, and increasing knowledge sharing.

Gender and Social Inclusion

Gender and social inclusion are at the heart of our work. DT Global understands that individuals have unique needs due to gender, class, ethnicity, disability, or sexual orientation. By assessing the complex nature of gender roles and social relations in societies, we design activities that respond to a diverse range of needs and deliver inclusive benefits. We work with government, private sector, and civil society to integrate gender equality and women's empowerment into political, economic, and environmental programming, including in conflict-affected regions. Adept at working in challenging environments and identifying context-specific solutions, our gender and social inclusion experts provide our partners with fresh, innovative approaches, maximizing equitable impact while contributing to transformative outcomes and sustainable change in gender and social relations.
